LATER. The "Telegraph" understands from enquiries that the position in Swatow is as follows:

Barbed-wire barricades have been crected around the British wharves at Swatow, entirely isolating them.

However, it is not believed that the Japanese will place any serious obstacles in the way of landing and - taking aboard legitimate freight, and will refuse permission only to "war materials."

At the present time, it is impessible to work cargo at Swatow owing to the disappearance of all coolle labour. · British ships, therefore, are maintaining schedules purely in order to keep the port open, and are, in some cases, travelling to and from Swatow in ballast. The position in Swatow is otherwise normal.

AN EFFORT by the Franco Government to restrain dealings in £1,000,000 securities which were deposited in London by the Republicans as a trust fund for refugees, failed in the Chancery Division recently.

Mr. Henri de Reding, the proposed administrator of the fund, in addition to resisting the request for an injunction, moved to strike out the Franco Government's statement of claim.

Tasting Bee By Television

TELEVISION recently presented a Tasting Bee when a team of three men ate against a team of three women-all of them food experts and all of them blindfolded.

Marcel Boulestin, cookery authority, was master of ceremonles. "Bee for Boulestin was the title, and the subtitle "Blind Man's Buffet."

"The buffet was covered with all manner of foods, and as the blindfolded people taste they had to identify it," explained a television official.

"They were expected to distinguish between tinned and fresh food; red and white wine, and so on" he continued. The teams were:

MEN: Edmund Dulac, illustrator and gourmet; Norman Davey, author of "Hungry Traveller in France"; P. Morton Shand, author of books on food and wine. Women: Martita Hunt, actress with extensive food knowledge. Downger Lady Swaythling famed hostess. Elizabeth Craig, journalist. Although the B.B.C. called this a "Bee" they said they still do not know exactly how the word "Bee" was derived. "All we know is that it has nothing to do with the two bees in B.B.C." commented the official.

According to Webster's Dictionary the word Bee is of American origin. The definition given is: "A neigh-bourly gathering of people to engage in united effort originally as practical assistance, later for competitive sports and pastime."

Confidence

THE initiative in Europe has changed hands. To-day the deeds are coming from the Democracies; the words from the Dictatorships.

Mussolini spoke at Turin yesterday. His remarks will not arouse as much interest in Britain as the Anglo-Italian football match.

British through diplomacy rearmament, there is a growing confidence that peace will prevail.

Britain is rapidly reaching a position from which she will be able to see that peace is kept.

The Peace Front becomes more extensive, more powerful. Turkey is the most important member enrolled to date.

One big gap remains—Russia. This week there will be redoubled efforts to close it.

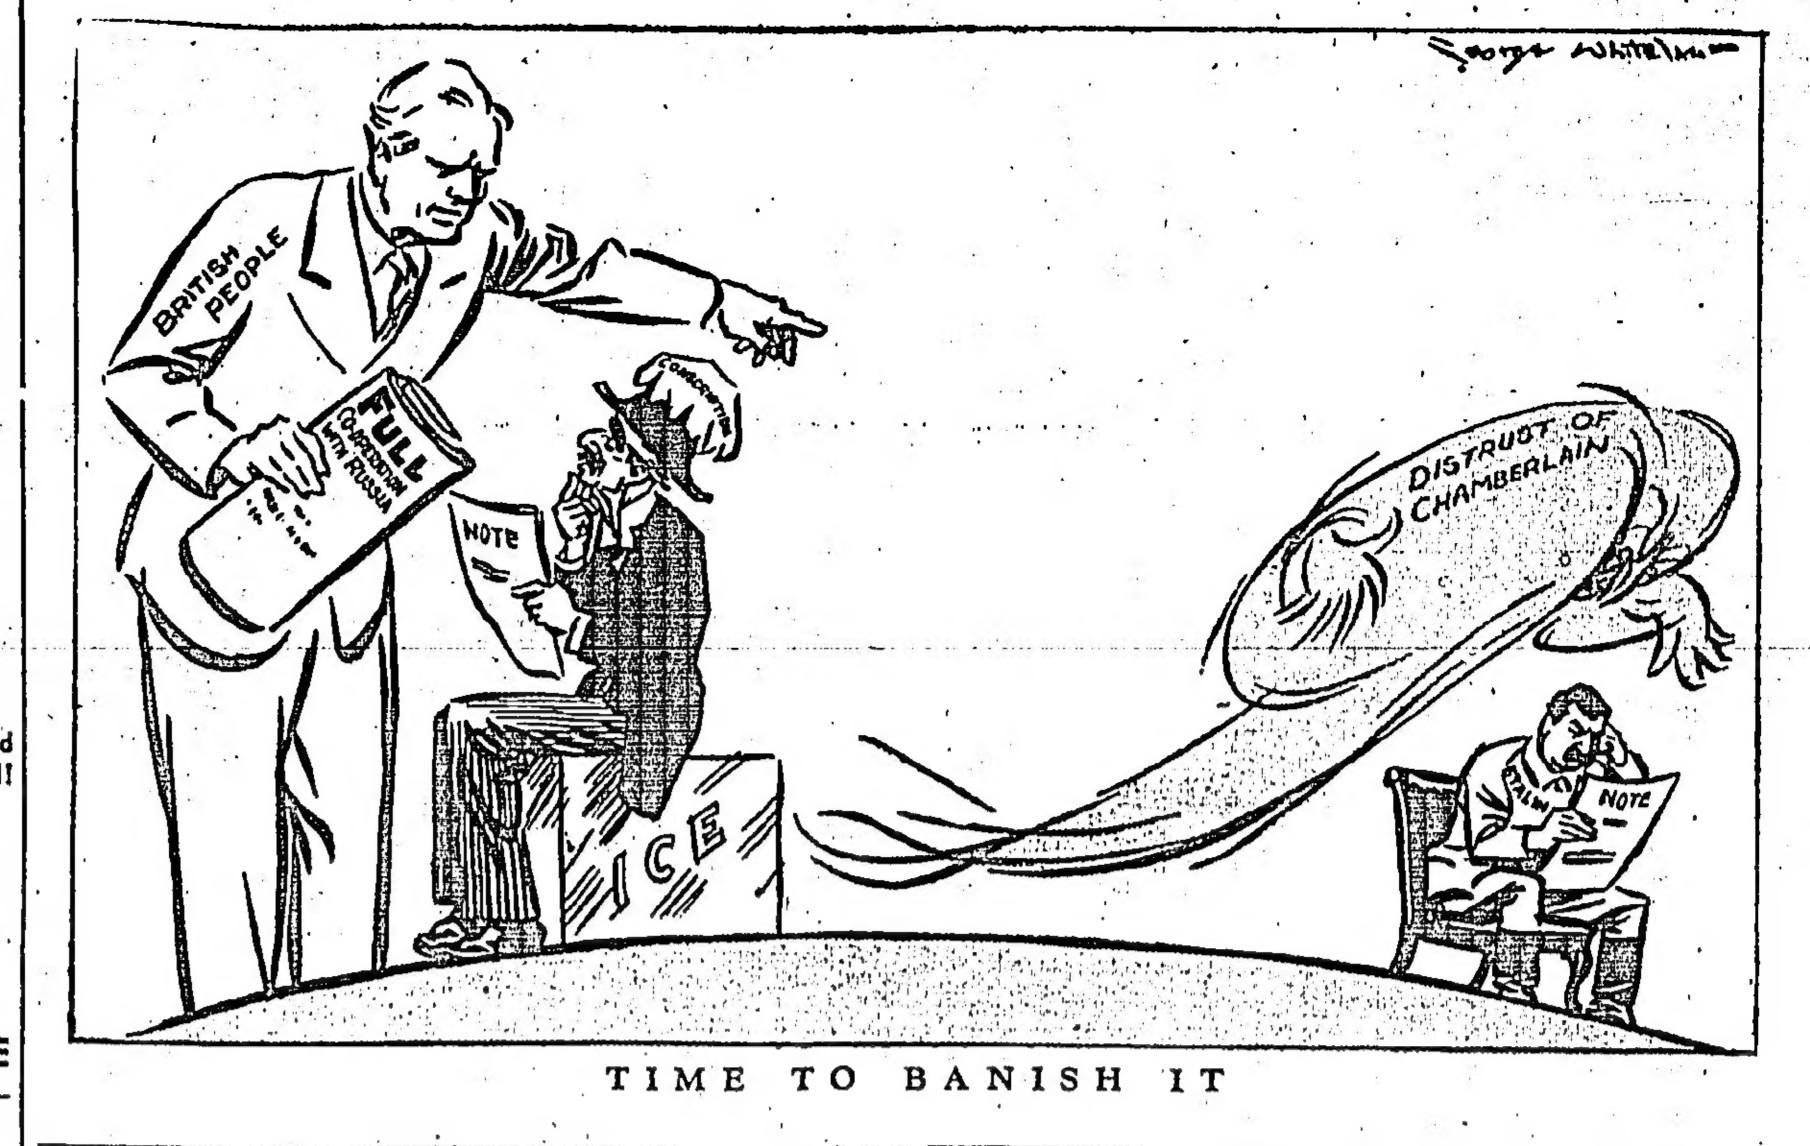

Even more impressive than these moves as a sign determination democratic Britain's huge rearmament. That-and that alone—has given heart to our friends.

No nation in all peace-time history has ever made a comparable effort. On land we have Conscription. At sea we are launching a warship a week. In the air our margin of inferiority is fast disappearing at the rate of 100 new warplanes a week.

Britain, after nearly 20 years, is approaching a point at which her armed forces are strong enough to support diplomacy.

Mussolini claims that the Axis is marching forward to give Europe But Britain and France are right to guard against a possible interpretation of this phrase as "peace dictated on Axis terms."

They are justified by experience—and by memory of the Duce's former deeds. Long before the democracies began to rearm ho frequently glorified the idea of war.

TW BY for Peace

HE proposition that without adequate supplies of raw materials for armaments no nation can carry on a war for any length of time is too obvious to require argument.

Mr. H. Morgenthau, the United States Secretary of Treasury, has recorded that in August, 1914, the German General Wangenheim said to him: "If we do not get to Paris in 30 days we are beaten." Later -after the German defeat on the Marne-the General added: "We have made a mistake in not laying in supplies for a protracted struggle. It is an error, however, which we shall not

IN face of this supreme importance of abundance of suitable raw materials to the successful conduct of a war, the peace-loving nations of the world should realise that they hold what is possibly the one infallible means of creating and maintaining permanent peace.

If the peace-loving democracies united in a refusal to supply raw materials to the war-like Powers, they could hamstring the war machines of those Powers; and aggression would become impos-

sidered by experts essential to the manufacture of armaments: Aluminium Antimony Molybdenum Cadmlum Nickel Chromium Petroleum Platinum Cotton Mercury

Rubber

Tungsten

Magnesite Manganese Of these the British Empire has an adequate supply of eighteen, America has twelve, Japan has only four, and no other country except Russia has more than four. while it is doubtful if Italy has an adequate supply of any of them blockade, as her war time requirements would be nearly twenty million tons a year.

Japan is at present waging was on China with materials largely supplied by the British Empire and United States. Without assistance from the English-speaking peoples Japan could not support the war for any length of time.

Why, then, should we not consider the question of controlling at least our own supplies of raw materials to aggressors and potential aggressors?

IT seems almost providential that at least 75 per cent. of the materials essential to war are controlled by the British Empire and the United States of America.

The present state of affairs in this matter of exporting raw materials is as farcical as it is tragic. Two days before Hitler told us he was going to march into Czecho-Slovakia a cargo of four thousand tons of British copper left a Canadian port for a German port -and we might have been at war in a week!

The United States has recently taken a stand in refusing to allow certain materials to go abroad. But what was the position in America last year?

The President was sending Notes to Japan protesting against the brutal murder of the Chinese people, while United States industrialists were shipping cargoes of munitions to Japan to keep up the supply of murdered Chinesel

the conquest of Czecho-Slovakia. Why, then, should we continue to supply raw materials to Germany - materials with which she builds up her armed forces in order to threaten helpless countries, and disturb the safety of the British Empire?

Is it not time we limited armaments by limiting the supply of raw materials with which armaments are made?

IT is important to indicate that the door would at all times be left open for any nation seeking economic relief and adjustment by peaceful means. No nation should be compelled to resort to war as a means of saving itself from economic strangulation.

It should be made clear that if a potential aggressor is willing to give an undertaking to renounce the savagery of war, then we will be willing to give an undertaking to renounce the selfishness and greed of monopoly.

Let us in this way demonstrate that the civilised methods outlined in the Kellogg Pact—a pact which already bears the signatures of 64 nations, including Germany, Italy, Japan, England, and the United States—can and will succeed.

The way will then be open for convening, with some reasonable expectation of success, the World Economic Conference proposed by the President of the United States.

WE must, however, make it clear that we will apply this economic boycott rather than permit any nation to make economic adjustments by war or the threat of war. We should act on these lines without delay for, unless we use our strategic economic advantages promptly, the loss of geographic strategical positions may impair the economic advantages we hold.

As I have already stated, an effective boycott on raw materials would so cripple the war machines of aggressive ; nations that war would become impossible. But the maintenance of world peace, or the mere absence of war. is by no means the sole benefit which would result:

The impossibility of successful war must inevitably lead to a general disarmament, and to a consequent vast release of wealth for constructive social services and the general well-being of mankind. The millennium might then be only "just round the corner "-if men were wise enough to find their.

It is noteworthy, however, that Austin has expressed an opinion that the Wimbledon turf should suit Rigg's type of game.

Donald McNeill's chances are also regarded as being distinctly good, especially in view of his impressive singles performances in India, Egypt, Germany and France. The fast Wimbledon surface will be favourable to his forcing tactics and all court game.

Continental Threat

Among the Continental stars, Puncee, of Yugo-Slavia, is conceded a better chance than Henner Henkel or Roderich Menzel, both of Germany, whose form this season has not been very impressive. It will be recalled that Tloczyneski (Polund) beat them both in Germany-Poland Davis Cup tic recently. Puncee's mechanical steadiness and great stamina will place him well among the possibilities. It will also be recalled that he gave Donald Budge, former Wimbledon champion, who is now a professional, n good run in their seml-final round encounter at last year's Wimbledon championship.

The Chinese Davis Cupper, Kho Sin-kle is credited with a good chance after completely dominating the British Tournaments this season, including the British Hardcourt Championwas disappointing and, while be possesses a great variety of strokes and perfect ball control, he is inclined to lose his concentration in a five set match.

EVENTS APPEAR VERY OPEN ABSENCE OF TITLE HOLDERS

Wimbledon, the magnetic tennis meeting which draws the world's finest players together for one fortnight, opens to-day. For the topranking exponents of the game, it is a tournament which may see the fulfilment of a year's hopes; for the up-and-coming, it is their finishing school, for one cannot attain world class without competing at Wimbledon.

Despite the fact that the First Test match between England and the West Indies commenced at Lord's on Saturday and is being continued to-day and to-morrow, England, at this time so cricket-conscious, is just as tennis-minded; and during the Wimbledon fortnight the tennis championships at the All-England Lawn Tennis Club must take pride of place in the country's sporting activities.

Whether the Wimbledon of 1939 will prove as colourful as in former years is another matter. It is a question open to doubt at least, for with the absence of Donald Budge, who has joined the professional ranks, the champions of three events will not be able to defend their titles.

Monday,

Last year Budge was a triple champlon. He won the men's singles by defeating "Bunny" Austin in the final; with Gene Mako, he won the men's doubles; and with Miss Alice Marblethe mixed doubles.

Adding further to the loss of "personalities" at Wimbledon, Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, lust year's ladies' singles champion, is not participating.

The absence of the Australians, Adrian Quist, Jack Bromwich, Jack Crawford and Vivian MacGraul, hillo robs the 1939 meeting of much of its interest. The Australian tennis authorities feel-and quite rightly too -that they have a great chance of lifting the Davis Cup from the United States now that Don Budge is no Miss Alice Murble (United To two "stonewallers" Mrs. Hilda longer in the amateur ranks, and in

EVENTS VERY OPEN

While the absence of both Budge and Mrs. Moody makes the meeting definitely the poorer, it also means that both the men's and women's singles will be more open, especially the former, which promises to be a verltable "dog-fight."

players, Mrs. Little (formerly Miss Dorothy Round) and Mrs. Ellis (formerly Senorita Anita Lizana), have not been mentioned. If their game has not deteriorated too much, they may yet spring a surprise or two before the championships are over. .. As a Trans-Ocean message pointed out the other day, the dominating position occupied by the American players is evidenced by the fact that out of 28 "seeded" competitors, eleven are Americans. This is a very high percentage indeed, but it is a fair indication of the position held by the players from the United States.

Helen Jacobs Back To Best Tennis Form

Round Fails Dorothy To Stay The Pace -In A Terrific Game

By STANLEY N. DOUST

London, June 1.

In the outstanding lawn tennis match of the season, so far, Helen Jacobs beat Dorothy Round (Mrs. D. Little) in the semi-final of the Priory Club singles, in Birmingham, yesterday, by 4-6, 6-3, 6-3.

Authoress Loses Slander

Appeal is to be lodged by an authoress who, in the King's Bench Division, lost an action for alleged slander which she brought against a former woman friend.

At the close of the case Mr. Justice Singleton said of her: "She goes away from this court with a perfectly clear character. I can understand that she thought it necessary to bring the action."

Recently, through her husband, the authoress,

Mrs. Merici Knowing wife of Capt. Harold Wilfred Knowing, of Tedworth-square, Chelsen, announced that she had instructed her solicitors to lodge an appeal.

Mrs. Knowing, who writes under her maiden name of Meriel Buchanan, is the daughter of Sir George Buchanan, the last British Ambassador to Imperial Russia. She escaped from the revolution with her parents in 1918.

The "Telegraph" understands from enquiries that the position in Swatow is as follows:

Barbed-wire barricades have been erected around the British wharves at Swatow, entirely isolating them. However, it is not believed that the Japanese will place any scrious obstacles in the way of landing and taking aboard legitimate freight, and will refuse permission only to "war materials." At the present time, it is impossible to work cargo at Swatovy owing to the disappearance of all coolie labour. British ships, therefore, are main-

Flown To London For Refugee Fund

AN EFFORT by the Franco Government to restrain dealings in £1,000,000 securities which were deposited in London by the Republicans as a trust fund for refugees, failed in the Chancery Division recently.

Mr. Henri de Reding, the proposed administrator of the fund, in addition to resisting the request for an injunction, moved to strike out the Franco Government's statement of claim.

Libel Action By Hitler's Former Friend

DR. ERNST FRANZ-SEDGWICK HANT-STAENGL, former friend of Hitler, whom he was stated to have once sheltered, brought an action for damages in the King's Bench Division recently.

Complaining that he had been libelled by statements in an American journal, the "New Republic," of April 27, 1938, the doctor, whose address was given as Gunterstone Road, West Kensington, sued Selfridge and Company, Limited, Oxford Street, W., who sold the paper.

The case was heard by Mr. Justice Atkinson and a special

Selfridges, in defence, said they had sold the "New Republic" in the ordinary course of their business and they relied upon the fact that the sale of the paper by them was made to a person on Dr. Hanfstnengl's behaif.

Mr. Eric Sachs, K.C., for Dr. Hanfstaengl, said the paragraph containing the alleged libel was headed: "Undesirable Refugees," and included the following:

"Dr. Hanfstaengl was famous as Hitler's boy friend until he became the victim of a palace intrigue.

"Political sanctuary is supposed to be for the victims of persecution, not the persecutors themselves."

VOLUNTARY. EXILE

Dr. Hanfstaengl, Mr. Sachs continued, had been living in voluntary exile in England since 1937 and no one was going to suggest a word against the propriety of his conduct here, or, indeed, as far as counsel knew, against his conduct anywhere.

At the age of 18, Dr. Hanfstaengl went to New York and he was educated at Harvard.

When in Germany in 1922 he come for the first time into personal contact with Herr Hitler. Plaintiff was then 35.

From 1922 till the end of 1923 he degrees. took an interest in the Nazi Party, which was then being formed. In 1923 there was the unsuccessful leader in prison.

Dr. Hanfstnengl sheltered Heri Hitler in his own house and hid him until he was eventually captured. In 1931, by which time Dr. Hanf-ZAWA directly. staengl had established a reputation as a historical writer and was in touch, counsel believed, with such men as Mr. Winston Churchill and Mr. Lloyd George, he accepted a position in the Nazi Party.

FRIENDSHIP WANED

From 1933, said Mr. Sachs, the year in which Herr Hitler came into power by being made the German Chan-cellor, the friendship between Dr. Hanfstaengl and Herr Hitler waned. In February, 1937, he left the coun-

Dr. Hanfstaengl, giving evidence, said his friendship with Herr Hitler ended in 1934, and since then he had never spoken to him.

Mr. Sachs: There is a suggestion which you interpret in this article as to your having certain perverted relations with the person named in the article. Is there the slightest foundation for that?—Not the slight-

Mr. G. D. Roberts, K.C. (cross-examining for Selfridge's): You came to Britain in February, 1937, and in July you brought an action against a weekly paper published here?—Yes.

Did the defendants apologise and pay compensation?—Yes, and indemnify me for costs.

Did you bring another action against a daily paper in which the defendants apologised and indemnified you against costs?—Yes.

And your character was vindicated on that occasion also?—Yes.

Looking back at it, don't you call it rather a dirty trick to wait for six weeks until this issue comes over from America, the only issue sold at all, and then bring this action at once?—We wrote to Selfridge's and I don't call it sporting not to answer and apologise. and apologise.

PHONE MESSAGE

Mrs. Doris A. Lynch, of Gloucester Place, S.W., gave evidence that last May Dr. Hanfstaengl telephoned her and said, "If you are near a her and said, "Il you are near a bookstal, where you can buy a copy of the 'New Republic' I think it would interest you to see something in it about me." She went to Selfridge's and bought the paper.

Mr. Roberts, opening the defence, submitted that the action had no merits.

"It is a purely artificial action," he said, "in: which the plaintiff has manufactured, the evidence of publication, tricking and trapping Messrs. Selfridge to supply a month-old copy of a weekly paper in order that he may bring a claim, not apparently minding the publicity the case will cause. It is provoked by himself solely to make money." The hearing was adjourned.

How Long Do You Take For Dinner?

FOLKESTONE.

Monday,

HOW long does it take you to eat your dinner? Can you manage it comfortably in half an hour, or do you need longer?

Folkestone Town Council decided to-day that its outdoor staff should have an hour—although the staff itself had decided by 232 votes to 8 that half an hour would be enough.

The deputy-mayor, Mr. R. L. Saunders, said: "I could not eat my dinner in comfort in half an hour." It was pointed out that the men who voted for half an hour did so because thereby they would save half an hour's pay during the three winter

The council decided by a majority of three to give them an hour for dinner-and full pay all the year.

strong enough.-Reuter. Defence Talks Concluding ANGLO-FRENCH defence conference sat for nine hours to-day. It is expected to close to-morrow. A communique states that a unanimous agreement has been reached on all matters of policy. At the conclusion of the conference, Admiral Sir Percy Noble will sal aboard the flagship Kent for northern China waters. "Reuter" understands that H.M.S. Kent is sailing to-morrow evening. The communique, the first issued made a tour of the classrooms and since the conference opened, states work shops, that reports on all the subjects discussed, and the decisions reached, were purely conjectural.

Observers believe that Anglo-French solidarity is emphasised, and that the talks have had a beneficial effect on the Far Eastern situation. It is believed that the French delegates will leave here on Thusday .--Reuter. -

Confidence

THE initiative in Europe has changed hands. 'To-day the deeds are coming from the Democracies; the words from the Dictatorships.

Mussolini spoke at Turin yesterday. His remarks will not arouse as much interest in Britain as the Anglo-Italian football match.

Now, through British diplomacy and rearmament, there is a growing confidence that peace will prevail.

Britain is rapidly reaching a position from which she will be able to see that peace is kept.

The Peace Front becomes more extensive, more powerful Turkey is the most important member enrolled to date.

One big gap remains-Russia. This week there will be redoubled efforts to close it.

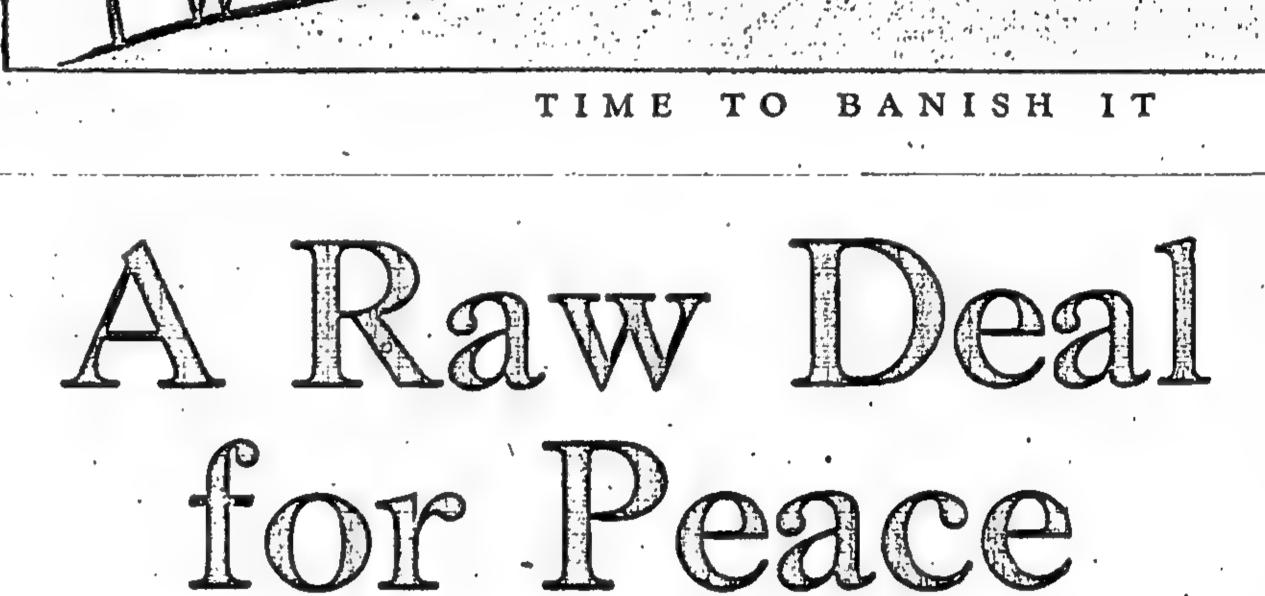

Even more impressive than these moves as a sign democratic determination Britain's huge rearmament. that alone—has That--and given heart to our friends.

No nation in all peace-time history has ever made a comparable effort. On land we have Conscription. At sea we are launching a warship a week. In the air our margin of inferiority is fast disappearing at the rate of 100 new warplanes a week.

Britain, after nearly 20 years, is approaching a point at which her armed forces are strong enough to support diplomacy.

Mussolini claims that the Axis is marching forward to give Europe "peace justice." But Britain and France are right to guard against a possible interpretation of this phrase as "peace dictated on Axis terms."

They are justified by experience—and by memory of the Duce's former deeds. - Long before the democracles began to

HE proposition that without adequate supplies of raw materials for armaments no nation can carry on a war for any length of time is too obvious to require argument.

Mr. H. Morgenthau, the United States Secretary of Treasury, has recorded that in August, 1914, the German General Wangenheim said to him: "If we do not get to Paris in 30 days we are beaten." Later -after the German defeat on the Marne—the General added: "We have made a mistake in not laying in supplies for a protracted struggle. It is an error, however, which we shall not

IN face of this supreme importance of abundance of suitable raw materials to the successful conduct of a war, the peace-loving nations of the world should realise that they hold what is possibly the one infallible means of creating and maintaining permanent peace. If the peace-loving democracies united in a refusal to supply raw materials to the war-like Powers they could hamstring the war machines of those Powers; and aggression would become impos-

sidered by experts essential to the manufacture of armaments: Aluminiufit Antimony Molybdenum Cadmlum Nickel Chromium Petroleum Platinum Cotton Mercury Copper Rubber Fluorspar Bulphur Tungsten Lead-ore Wool Magnesite

Of these the British Empire has an adequate supply of eighteen. America has twelve, Japan has only four, and no other country except Russia has more than four, while it is doubtful if Italy has an adequate supply of any of them except mercury.

NO dictator country has more than a small fraction of the oil required even for peace time needs. Gormany's air strength has, of course, been greatly exaggerated, but if she actually had the number of planes credited to her, the argument put forward here would gain added force—because even at their present strength she could not keep her air fleets operating without imported oil.

Actually she controls only sometime requirements.

blockade, as her war time requirements would be nearly twenty million tons a year.

Japan is at present waging war on China with materials largely supplied by the British Empire and United States. Without assistance from the English-speaking peoples Japan could not support the war for any length of time.

Why, then, should we not consider the question of controlling at least our own supplies of raw materials to aggressors and potential aggressors?

IT seems almost providential that at least 75 per cent, of the materials essential to war are controlled by the British Empire and the United States of America.

The present state of affairs in this matter of exporting raw materials is as farcical as it is tragic. Two days before Hitler told us he was going to march into Czecho-Slovakia a cargo of four thousand tons of British copper left a Canadian port for a German port -and we might have been at war in a wecki

The United States has recently taken a stand in refusing to allow certain materials to go abroad. But what was the position in America last year?

The President was sending Notes to Japan protesting against the brutal murder of the Chinese people, while United States industrialists were shipping cargoes of munitions to Japan to keep up the supply of murdered Chineset

GERMANY, Italy and Japan could not have reached their present armed strength without supplies regularly and increasingly obtained from the British Empire and the United States.

The Prime Minister recently stated that the time was approaching when he hoped to discuss an agreement for the limitation of armaments. No sconer had he made this statement than the Munich agreement was torn to shreds and thrown in his face by way to it.

tons of oil unnually. But even then were a feature of the Fishery Fair to the boards of relief for grocery apathy, and trate, incoherent re-

the conquest of Czecho-Slovakia. Why, then, should we continue to supply raw materials to Germany - materials with which she builds up her armed forces in order to threaten helples's countries, and disturb the safety of the British Empire?

Is it not time we limited armaments by limiting the supply of raw materials with which armaments are made?

IT is important to indicate that the door would at all times be left open for any nation seeking economic relief and adjustment by peaceful means. No nation should be compelled-to resort to war as a means -of saving itself from economic strangulation.

It should be made clear that if a potential aggressor is willing to give an undertaking to renounce the savagery of war, then we will be willing to give an undertaking to renounce the selfishness and greed of monopoly.

Let us in this way demonstrate that the civilised methods outlined in the Kellogg Pact—a pact which aiready bears the signatures of 64 nations, including Germany, Italy, Japan, England, and the United States—can and will succeed.

The way will then be open for convening, with some reasonable expectation of success, the World Economic Conference proposed by the President of the United States.

WE must, however, make it clear that we will apply this economic boycott rather than permit any nation to make economic adjustments by war or the threat of war. We should act on these lines without delay for, unless we use our strategic economic advantages promptly, the loss of geographic strategical positions may impair the economic advantages we hold.

As I have already stated, an effective boycott on raw materials would so eripple the war machines of aggressive nations that war would become impossible.

But the maintenance of world peace, or the mere absence of war, is by no means the sole benefit which would result.

The impossibility of successful war must inevitably lead to a general disarmament, and to a consequent vast release of wealth for constructive social services and the general well-being of mankind.

The millennium might then be only "just round the corner"-if men were wise enough to find their.

Debate On Measure

He "expressed " the opinion" that penal measures must be discontinued, but others contended that sudden abolition of these measures would be disadvantageous, because the native population in some parts was still primitive and could not work without some kind of compulsion.

The British delegate said that it would be difficult to draw the line between violations of the penal and did not appear to pick up fruit when it was ripe, with the result that it was lost.

This argument was sharply refuted by the Indian representative who declared that such reasoning was unworthy of the representative of a great empire. He pointed out that if the driver of a milk wagon in London does not appear promptly on duty and the milk goes sour the driver is not treated as a criminal and imprisoned.

The Indian Government represened opposition to the penal measures. They expressed surprise that members of such a great democracy as France should defend a system of penal measures which were contrary to the principles of their race.—

EVENTS APPEAR VERY OPEN IN ABSENCE OF TITLE HOLDERS

Wimbledon, the magnetic tennis meeting which draws the world's finest players together for one fortnight, opens to-day. For the topranking exponents of the game, it is a tournament which may see the fulfilment of a year's hopes; for the up-and-coming, it is their finishing school, for one cannot attain world class without competing at Wimbledon.

Despite the fact that the First Test match between England and the West Indies commenced at Lord's on Saturday and is being continued to-day and to-morrow, England, at this time so cricket-conscious, is just as tennis-minded; and during the Wimbledon fortnight the tennis championships at the All-England Lawn Tennis Club must take pride of place in the country's sporting activities.

Whether the Wimbledon 1 of 1939; will prove as colourful as in former years is another matter. It is a question open to doubt at least, for with the absence of Donald Budge, who has joined the professional ranks, the champions of three events will not be able to defend their titles.

Last year Budge was a triple champion. He won the men's singles by bledon: defeating "Bunny" Austin In: the final; with Gene Mako, he wont the men's doubles; and with Miss Alice Marble the mixed doubles.

Adding further to the loss of "personalities" at Wimbledon, Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, last year's ladies' singles champion; is not participating.

The absence of the Australians, Adrian Quist, Jack Bromwich, Jack Crawford and Vivian MacGrath, also robs the 1939 meeting of much of its interest. The Australian tennis nuthorities feel—and quite rightly too -that they have a great chance of lifting the Davis Cup from the United States now that Don Budge is no longer in the amateur ranks, and in order to concentrate on the Davis

The women's event also looks very open. Here is the "seeded" list: Miss Alice Marble (America), Miss Helen Jacobs (America), Madamo Hilde Sperling (Denmark), Madame Mathicu (France), Mile. Jadwina Jedzrelowska (Poland), Miss Kay Stammers (Great Britain), Miss Ruth Hardwick (Great Britain), and Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Fabyan (America).

It will be seen that two well-known players, Mrs. Little (formerly Miss Dorothy Round) and Mrs. Ellis (formerly Senorita Anita Lizana), have not been mentioned. If their game has not deteriorated too much, they may yet spring a surprise or two before the championships are over.

As a Trans-Ocean message pointed out the other day, the dominating position occupied by the American players is evidenced by the fact that, out of 28 "seeded" competitors, eleven are Americans. This is a very high percentage indeed, but it is a fair indication of the position held by the players from the United States. In the women's event, Wimbledon has a link with Hongkong in that Miss Gen Hoahing is participating for the first time. She has many reintives and friends in the Colony, and all will watch her progress with the greatest interest.

RUMANIANS OUTCLASSED

LEAD 2-0, ENGLAND THEN EASE UP

London, May 25. Simply toying with their opponents, England wound up their football tour of the Continent by beating Rumania last evening at Bucharest. Rejoicing in the fact that they were not called upon to face a gruelling ninety minutes in terrific heat—the match was played in dull, cold weather—the tourists monopolised the play to such an extent that many of their movements carried them down the field without a Rumanian touching the ball.

BARBED-WIRE AT SWATOW WHARF

Japanese Com-ALTHOUGH at Swatow, Admiral mander-in-Chief Kondo, informed the British naval authorities on Friday night that British ships would be permitted to enter Swatow harbour without hindrance after noon on Saturday, a new crisis has developed at the Kwangtung treaty

The British steamers Tsinan and Fausang entered the harbour before the Japanese permit a Chinese policeman interfered four became effective under escort by H.M.S. Scout.

The action of the British naval authorities in providing an escort for the steamers has led to a sharp protest from the Japanese, who have retaliated by completely isolating the British wharves.

Barbed-wire barricades have been erected around the wharves, and sentries are not permitting anyone to pass through the barriers without strict examination.

Cargo is not permitted to pass from the city on to "In the event of further incidents the wharves. The Japanese are permitting only mails of this nature, there is no knowing and the personal effects of third Power nationals to pass what kind of a situation will develop," the spokesman threaten through the barriers from ship to shore.

The blockade, if continued, will seriously affect Hongkong, which relies for the major part of its perishable foodstuffs from Swatow since the occupation of Canton has prevented supplies from reaching us from the Canton River area. Among the commodities affected are fish, fresh vegetables

The blockade will also have a serious effect on the food situation at Kulangsu, which is relying entirely on Swatow

since the Japanese have prevented shipping with the mainland

The "Telegraph" understands from enquiries that the position in Swatow is as follows:

Barbed-wire barricades have been erected around the British wharves at Swatow, entirely isolating them.

owing to the disappearance of all on June 19: coolie labour.

British ships, therefore, are maintaining schedules purely in order to keep the port open, and are, in some cases, travelling to and from Swatow in ballast. The position in Swatow is otherwise normal.

Russian Report

MOSCOW, June 25.—The serious air and land fighting during the past month on the Outer Mongol and Man-chukuo border is described in a communique, which traces the trouble to attacks by Japanese and Manchukuo troops on Outer Mongoi frontier posts in the area south-east of Lake Bulrnor, near the Khalkingot River on May 11.

The communique says that during the next few days, there were almost daily clashes, resulting in a number of casualties on both sides.

Three more serious battles occurred before the end of May after Japanese-Manchukuo troops had received re-inforcements from Haifar.

In these engagements, the invaders suffered 400 killed and many wounded, while the defenders lost 40 killed and 70 wounded. Here the communique refers to document seized, allegedly over the signature of General 'Kamatsubara, commander of the 23rd Japanese division at Halfar, advising his men that they must destroy, "with the assistance", of troops in Outer Mongolia the Khalkingol area.

Claims Conflict -Coming-to-the-air-battles, the communique asserts that Japanese aircraft made a surprise attack on two field aerodromes on May 28, and, "taking "off after some delay", Mongol-Soviet fighters shot down three of the raiders, losing nine of their own nireraft. On June 22, 120 raiders made a new attack and were engaged by 95 defending machines, resulting in 31 enemy and 12 defenders being brought down. In another battle on June 24, be-Japanese lost 25 machines and the defenders two.

Libel Action By Hitler's Former Friend DR. ERNST FRANZ, SEDGWICK HANF-

STAENGL, former friend of Hitler, whom he was stated to have once sheltered, brought an action for damages in the King's Bench Division recently.

Complaining that he had been libelled by statements in an American journal, the "New Republic," of April 27, 1938, the doctor, whose address was given as Gunterstone Road, West Kensington, sued Selfridge and . Company, Limited, Oxford Street, W., who sold the paper.

The case was heard by Mr. Justice Atkinson and a special

Selfridges, in defence, said they had sold the "New Republic" in the ordinary course of their business and they relied upon the fact that the sale of the paper by them was made to a person on Dr. Hanfstnengl's behalt.

Mr. Erle Sachs, K.C., for Dr. Hanfstnengl, said the paragraph containing the alleged libel was headed: "Undesirable Refugees," and included the following:

"Dr. Hanfstnengt was famous as Hitler's boy friend until he became the victim of a palace intrigue.

"Political sanctuary is supposed to be for the victims of persecution, not the persecutors themselves."

exile in England since 1937 and no one was going to suggest a word against the propriety of his conduct here, or, indeed, as far as counsel knew, against his conduct anywhere. At the age of 18, Dr. Hanfstnengl went to New York and he was

Tom Thumb Will Never Grow.

BECAUSE of a gland no bigger than a split pea Thomas Wiltiams, aged three, is barely 14lb. in weight, and 25 inches tall. and is unlikesly to grow any higger.

He weighed 3lb, at birth. He has ceased to grow since he was two. In despair, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Henry Wil-Hams, of Upper Drayton-place. Croydon, took him to several hospitals, and doctors broke the news to them that Tommy was a rare case of deficient pituitary gland.

Neighbours' kiddles call him "Tom Thumb Tommy," and carry him under their arm when it is his turn to run during a game of "Tag." Mr. Williams, 32-year-old radio repairer, said.

"A doctor informed me that thousands of years ago, an ancestor must have been a midget, and Tommy is a throw-back to that ancestor.

Tommy said: "I do not mind being smail, bécause I can climb through fences which the other kids -cannot."

Binnie Barnes Injured

New York. DINNIE BARNES, the actress, is in hospital with internal injuries caused by being struck by a tennis ball while playing with Gilbert Roland.

Her physician, Dr. Irving L. Ress, said she must stay in bed. He does not expect that an operation will be necessary.

Miss Barnes was playing at the net in a doubles game when Gilbert served one of the "cannon balls" for which he is noted. "I'm a little, short-sighted and didn't move quickly enough," Miss Barnes said. "The ball knocked me dat. I was able to finish the set, but a little later I felt a severe pain and had to call the doctor."

Confidence

THE initiative in Europe has changed hands. To-day the deeds are coming from the Democracies; the words from the Dictatorships.

Mussolini spoke at Turin yesterday. His remarks will not arouse as much interest in Britain as the Anglo-Italian football match.

through rearmament there is a growing confidence that peace will prevail.

Britain_is_rapidly_reaching_a position from which she will be able to see that peace is kept.

The Peace Front becomes more extensive, more powerful. Turkey is the most important member enrolled to date.

One big gap remains—Russia. This week there will be redoubled efforts to close it.

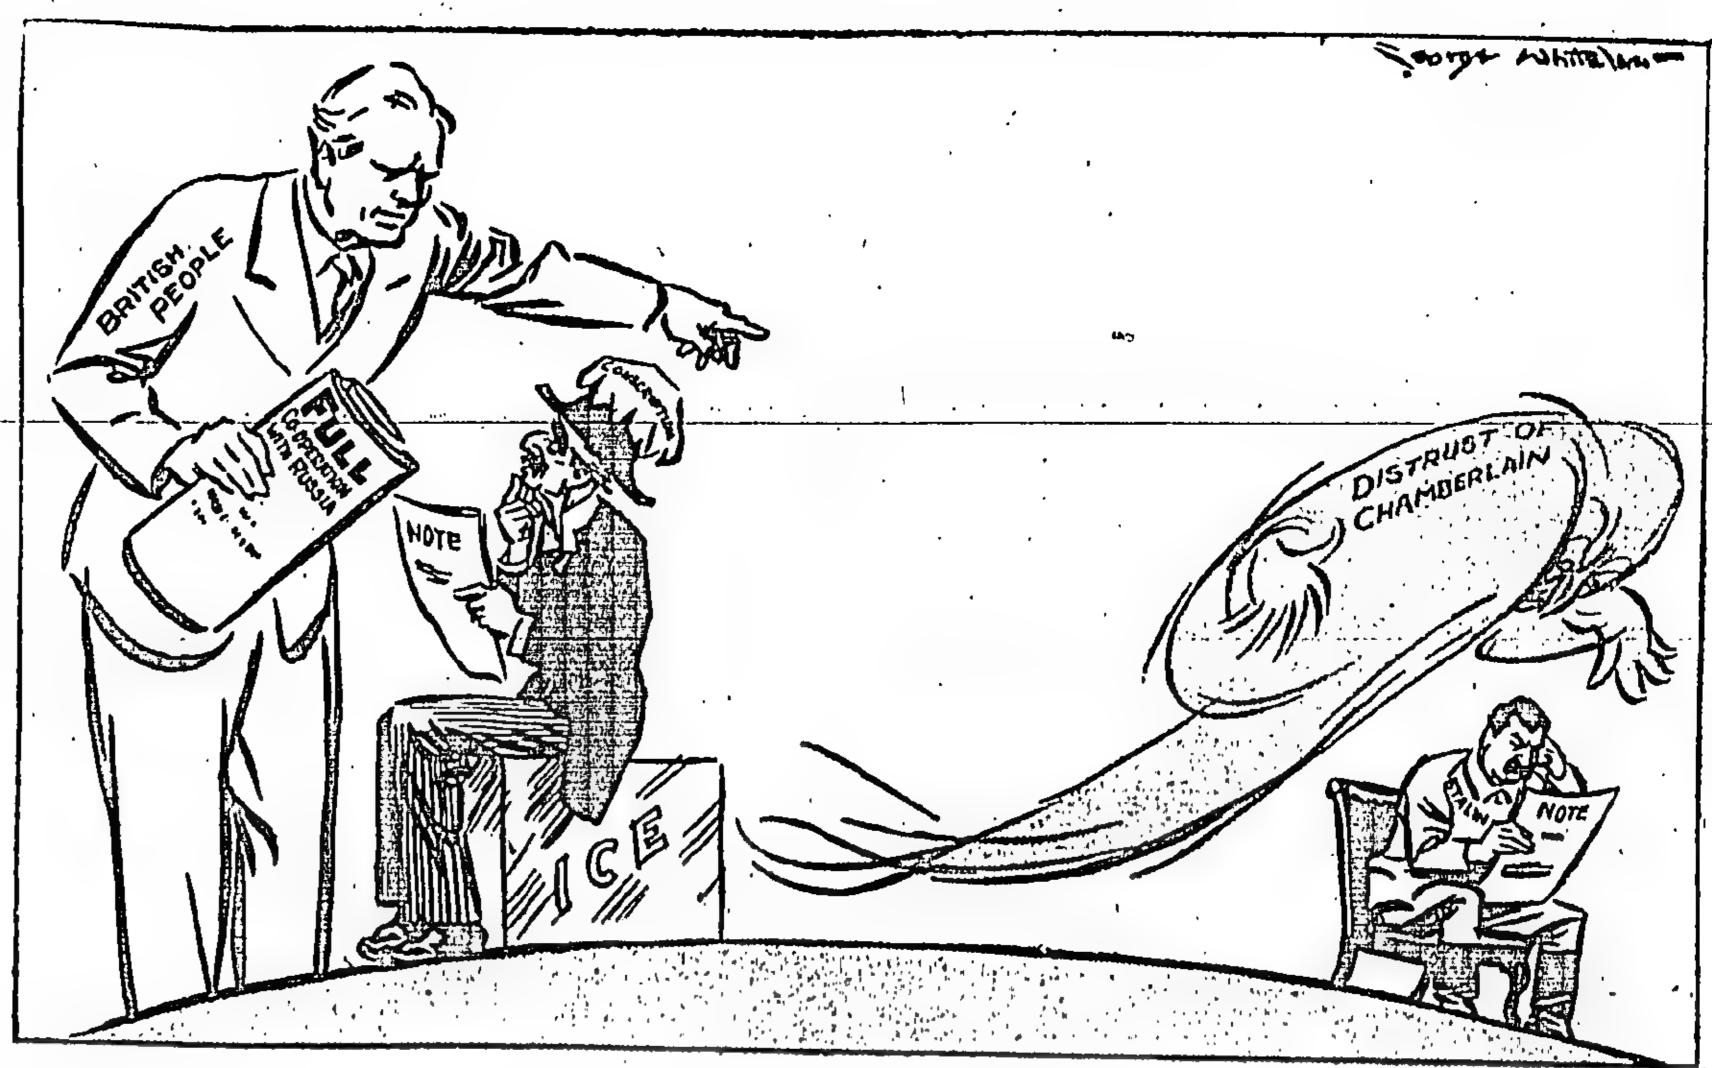

Even more impressive than sible. these moves as a sign democratic determination Britain's huge rearmament That-and that alone—has given heart to our friends.

No nation in all peace-time history has ever made a comparable effort. On land we have Conscription. At sea we are launching a warship a week. In the air our margin of inferiority is fast disappearing at the rate of 100 new warplanes a week.

Britain, after nearly 20 years, is approaching a point at which her armed forces are strong enough to support her diplomacy.

Mussolini claims that the Axis is marching forward to give Europe justice." But Britain and France are right to guard against a possible interpretation of this phrase as "peace dictated on Axis terms."

TIME TO BANISH IT

Peace

HE proposition that without adequate supplies of If raw materials for armaments no nation can carry on a war for any length of time is too obvious to require argument.

Mr. H. Morgenthau, the United States Secretary of Treasury, has recorded that in August, 1914, the German General Wangenheim said to him: "If we do not get to Paris in 30 days we are beaten." Later -after the German defeat on the Marne—the General added: "We have made a mistake in not laying in supplies for a protracted struggle. It is an error, however, which we shall not

IN face of this supreme importance of abundance of suitable raw materials to the successful conduct of a war, the peace-loving nations of the world should realise that they hold what is possibly the one infallible means of creating and maintaining permanent peace.

If the peace-loving democracies united in a refusal to supply raw materials to the war-like Powers. they could hamstring the war machines of those Powers; and aggression would become impos-

manufacture of armaments: Aluminium Antimony, Molybdenum Cadmium Nickel Chromium Petroleum Platinum Cotton Mercury Copper Fluorspar Bulphur Graphite Iron-ore Tungsten Lend-ore Wool Magnesite Manganese

Of these the British Empire has an adequate supply of eighteen, America has twelve, Japan has only four, and no other country except Russia has more than four, while it is doubtful if Italy has an adequate supply of any of them except mercury.

NO dictator country has more than a small fraction of the oil required even for peace time needs. Germany's air strength has, of course. been greatly exaggerated, but if she actually had the number of planes credited to her, the argument put forward here would gain added force—because even at their present strength she could not keep her air fleets operating without imported oil.

Actually she controls only something like 30 per cent. of her peace

Japan is at present waging war on China with materials largely supplied by the British Empire and United States. Without assistance from the English-speaking peoples Japan could not support the war for any length of time.

Why, then, should we not consider the question of controlling at least our own supplies of raw materials to aggressors and potential aggressors?

IT seems almost providential that at least 75 per cent. of the matedals essential to war are controlled by the British Empire and the

The present state of affairs in this matter of exporting raw materials is as farcical as it is tragic. Two days before Hitler told us he was going to march into Czecho-Slovakia a cargo of four thousand tons of British copper left a Canadian port for a German port -and we might have been at war in a week!

United States of America,

The United States has recently taken a stand in refusing to allow certain materials to go abroad. But what was the position in America last year?

The President was sending Notes to Japan protesting against the brutal murder of the Chinese people, while United States industrialisis were shipping cargoes of munitions to Japan to keep up the. supply of murdered Chinesel stated that the time was approaching when he hoped to discuss an agreement for the limitation of armaments. No sooner had he made this statement than the shreds and thrown in his face by way to it.

the conquest of Czecho-Slova. kla. Why, then, should we continue to supply raw materials to Germany — materials with which she builds up her armed forces in order to threaten helpless countries, and disturb the safety of the British - Empire?

Is it not time we limited armaments by limiting the supply of raw materials with which armaments are made?

IT is important to indicate that the door would at all times be left open for any nation seeking economic relief and adjustment by peaceful means. No nation should be compelled to resort to war as a means of saving itself irom economic strangulation.

It should be made clear that if a potential aggressor is willing to give an undertaking to renounce the savagery of war, then we will be willing to give an undertaking to renounce the selfishness and greed of monopoly.

Let us in this way demonstrate that the civilised methods outlined in the Kellogg Pact—a pact which already bears the signatures of 64 nations, including Germany, Italy, Japan, England, and the United States—can and will succeed.

The way will then be open for convening, with some reasonable expectation of success, the World Economic Conference proposed by the President of the United States.

WE must, however, make it clear that we will apply this economic boycott rather than permit any nation to make economic adjustments by war or the threat of war. We should act on these lines without delay for, unless we use our strategic economic advantages promptly, the loss of geographic strategical positions may impair the economic advantages we hold.

As I have already stated, an effective boycott on raw materials would so cripple the war machines of aggressive nations that war would become impessible.

But the maintenance of world peace, or the mere absence of war, is by no means the sole benefit which would result.

The impossibility of successful war must inevitably lead to i The Prime Minister recently general disarmament, and to a consequent vast release of wealth for constructive social services and the general well-being of mankind. The millennium might then be only "just round the corner"-if Munich agreement was torn to men were wise enough to find their

Donald McNeill's chances are also regarded as being distinctly good, especially in view of his impressive singles performances in India, Egypt. Germany and France. The fast Wimbledon surface will be favourable to his forcing tactics and all court game.

Continental Threat.

Among the Continental stars. Puncec, of Yugo-Slavia, is conceded a better chance than Henner Henkel or Roderich Menzel, both of Germany, whose form this season has not been very impressive. It will be recalled that Tloczyneski (Poland) beat them both in Germany-Poland Davis Cup tic recently. Puncec's mechanical steadiness and great stamina will place him well among the possibilities. It will also be recalled that he gave Donald Budge, former Wimbledon champion, who is now a professional, a good run in their semi-final round encounter at last year's Wimbledon championship.

The Chinese Davis Cupper, Kho Sin-kie is credited with a good chance after completely dominating the British Tournaments this season, including the British Hardcourt Championship. His form in Paris, however, was disappointing and, while be possesses a great variety of strokes and perfect ball control, he is inclined to lose his concentration in a five set match.

EVENTS VERY OPEN IN ABSENCE OF TITLE HOLDERS

(By "Abe")

Wimbledon, the magnetic tennis meeting which draws the world's finest players together for one fortnight, opens to-day. For the topranking exponents of the game, it is a tournament which may see the fulfilment of a year's hopes; for the up-and-coming, it is their finishing school, for one cannot attain world class without competing at Wimbledon.

Despite the fact that the First Test match between England and the West Indies commenced at Lord's on Saturday and is being continued to-day and to-morrow, England, at this time so cricket-conscious, is just as tennis-minded; and during the Wimbledon fortnight the tennis championships at the All-England Lawn Tennis Club must take pride of place in the country's sporting activities.

Whether the Wimbledon of 1939. will prove as colourful as in former years is another matter. It is a question open to doubt at least, for with the absence of Donald Budge, who has joined the professional ranks, the champions of three events will not be able to defend their titles.

Last year Budge was a triple champton. He won the men's singles by defeating "Bunny" Austin in the final; with Gene Make, he won the men's doubles; and with Miss Alice Marble the mixed doubles.

- Adding further to the loss of "personnlities" at Wimbledon, Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, last year's ladies' singles champion, is not participating.

The absence of the Australians Adrian Quist, Jack Bromwich, Jack Crawford and Vivian MacGrath, also robs the 1939 meeting of much of its interest. The Australian tenninuthorities feel-and quite rightly too -that they have a great chance of lifting the Davis Cup from the United States now that Don Budge is no order to concentrate on the Davis Cup, the Australian stars are passing

EVENTS VERY OPEN While-the absence of both Budge and Mrs. Moody makes the meeting definitely the poorer, it also means that both the men's and women's veritable "dog-fight." Look at this "seeded" list:

Will he reach the final stage again this year? In the Queen's Club championships he was climinated by Kukuljevic, of Yugoslavia, an "unseeded" man, and it may be that his recent tour of the United States on behalf of the Moral Renrmament Movement, whatever it has done for world peace, has not done his tennis any good. Much as one would like to see this splendid player win the title, honesty compels one to admit that his chances of carrying it off are no better than the rest of the

It will be seen that two well-known players, Mrs. Little (formerly Miss Dorothy Round) and Mrs. Ellis (formerly Senorita Anita Lizana), have not been mentioned. If their game has not deteriorated too much, they may yet spring a surprise or two before the championships are over. As a Trans-Ocean message pointed out the other day, the dominating position occupied by the American players: is evidenced by the fact that out of 28 "seeded" competitors, eleven are Americans. This is a tary high percentage indeed, but it is a fair indication of the position held by the players from the United States. In the women's event, Wimbledon

Round Fails To Stay The Pace In A Terrific Game

By STANLEY N. DOUST

London, June 1. In the outstanding lawn tennis match of the season, so far, Helen Jacobs beat Dorothy Round (Mrs. D. Little) in the semi-final of the Priory Club singles, in Birmingham, yesterday, by 4-6, 6-3, 6-3.

A LITTLE HASTY

Dorothy, a great fighter, won the 5th, lost the next, being a little hasty in going for her winning shots, but

Authoress Loses Slander Action

Appeal is to be lodged by an authoress who, in the King's Bench Division, lost an action for, alleged slander which she brought against a former woman friend.

At the close of the case Mr. Justice Singleton said of her: "She goes away from this court with a perfectly clear character. I can understand that she thought it necessary to bring the action."

Recently, through her husband, the authoress,

Mrs. Merici Knowing wife of Knyl Capt. Harold Wilfred Knowing, of
